FATHERS, SONS DRAW CLOSER

SEVENTY ATTEND ANNUAL BANQUET OF Hi-Y CLUB.

FRANK LIDDLE SPEAKS

State Boys' Work Secretary And Others Urge Strengthening Of Spirit Of Understanding.

Seventy fathers and sons and Hi-Y alumni attended the second annual Father and Son banquet of the Hi-Y Club of the Maryville High School, held last night in the dining hall of the First M. E. Church. There was not a moment in the program that lagged, from the time Toastmaster Edward Hudson made his introductory speech until the fathers and sons clasped hands around the table and sang, "Blest Be The Tie That Binds."

The keynote of every speech called for strengthening of the understanding and co-operation between father and son.

"Maybe the father expects more of his son, but he has a right. There's a reason. The father is interested in seeing his boy become something worthwhile; he would have his boy be what he would have like to have been. At times the dad may seem grouchy, 'old-fogeyish,' but say, dad will stick by his boy from the drop of his hat. The boy may triumph in something that dad is not interested in but he joins in the boy's happiness as if it were his own, because his boy done a given job and done it well," said Frank M. Liddle, state boys work secretary of St. Louis.

Mr. Liddle called for brother, father and son harmony. He cited example after example where boys and fathers "got along" and others where they did not get along.

"The place where father and son relations can be strengthened is in the church and the development of spiritual life," Dr. C. C. James said in his five-minute tribute.

Martin Lewis, jr., in a toast to the sons, designated the Hi-Y as a splendid example of the instilling of higher motives in high school life.

"Stick to your education, sons. Don't quit school for any job or price that may come to you until you have finished your education. Encourage your sons, fathers. Stick to seeing your boy through. It's the job every father has," said Dr. Jesse Miller, sr.

J. M. Snyder, Boys work secretary of St. Joseph, said that if father-and-son spirit is to be well grounded, the "pal" idea between the team must exist.

A word of greetings from the St. Joseph Hi-Y Clubs was given to the Maryville organization last night by Kenneth Vuille, president of the council of St. Joseph clubs, who came to Maryville with Mr. Snyder.

C. W. Croy, Maryville High School athletic coach, stated that he knew fathers who were glad their boys were out for football and other forms of athletics but were too busy to inquire into the nature of their work. He declared that fathers nearly always were glad to have their sons venture into athletics for physical development. "We are doing very well at Maryville High School, but there is plenty to do to make it better yet. My only wish is that more boys would enter into athletics," the coach said.

A gavel, carrying the sentiment "Carry On" was presented by L. L. St. Clair, principal of the High School, to Walter Allen, president of the Hi-Y. The gift comes from the Manual Arts Hi-Y Club at Los Angeles, Cal., of which George Andrews is president. The gavel has a silver plate on it on which is inscribed "M. H. S. Hi-Y Pres." On the plate is to be engraved the names of all Maryville Hi-Y presidents. Each year as the president leaves office he is to hand the gavel to the succeeding president.

The banquet was served through the courtesy of the Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. Church and music was furnished by a seven-piece orchestra under the direction of H. O. Hickernell.

This Morning the Coldest of Season Says Weather Man

Chilly this morning?

You had reason to be, according to J. R. Brink, local weather observer, whose official thermometer this morning recorded the lowest temperature of the season. The official reading was 14 degrees above zero.

The minimum temperature yesterday morning was 20 degrees.

The forecast for tomorrow, Mr. Brink said, is for continued fair weather, with a slowly rising temperature.

WILL DRILL A SECOND WELL

DIRECTORS OF QUITMAN OIL CO. MAKE DEFINITE DECISION.

SAY CHANCES BETTER

Valuable Information Gained From First Venture, It Is Declared—Call Made for Money.

The Quitman Oil and Gas Company has definitely decided to drill a second well on the Florida Creek-Quitman structure and will start drilling soon, it was announced today.

The showing of oil and gas and the valuable information gained from the drilling of the first well have lead the directors to believe that the second well will "more than likely" prove this field.

Howard P. Manning, petroleum geologist, thinks the chances of the second well are at least 10 to 1 better than than were in the first well.

The board of directors has ordered Joseph S. Carden, treasurer, to collect for the shares of stock that have been subscribed and to dispose of the few remaining shares as quickly as possible. Mr. Carden says it seems unnecessary to call on each subscriber and asks that they mail their checks and he will have certificates issued at once.

The first well was sunk to a depth of 1,700 feet. The geologist and the directors of the company believe the second well will find oil in 1,300 feet and do not plan to go deeper than that. The new location has not been definitely decided.

Enough money has been pledged to defray the expense of the scond well if it can be collected, it was said. The rig is still at the first hole and the second can be drilled at considerably less expense.

Windows in a New House Are Broken

Vandalism Last Night at 410 West Seventh Street Is Unexplained.—Done From Outside.

Seven windows on three sides of a new house building at 410 West Seventh street were broken mysteriously sometime last night, apparently by pieces of brick, stones and clods thrown from the outside.

The house is owned by Theodore Miller and is being built by Logan Brothers. Neither the owner nor the contractors could offer any suggestion as to the identity of the vandals and neither knew of any cause for animosity on the part of any persons. None of the neighbors heard the crash of the breaking and falling glass.

An investigation was made this morning by Sheriff Lowell B. Campbell and B. F. Dougan, chief of police, but no clues were found.

Help to Widows, Soldiers Is Part Red Cross Work

The Red Cross is doing other work besides disaster relief. The help it is giving soldiers and widows is wonderful and it is carrying something in that line that no one else is doing. Everyone knows about the disaster work, but the Red Cross does other great work that many of us never realize. J. B. Cummins, Cummins Blagg Furniture Company.

He was in the front line of battle when Lee surrendered, and took part in the grand review at Washington, D. C.

Mr. Ingerson made a prospecting tour through Missouri, Kansas, New Mexico, and Colorado. He followed mining for a while. He came to Nodaway County about 1880 and purchased a farm in the Pickering community and several years ago he moved to Maryville. He went to California about three years ago.

Surviving are four children, Mr. Ingerson of Glendale; Mrs. Anice Moffit, Longmont, Colo.; Mrs. Arch Harper, Yuma, Colo.; a step-daughter, Mrs. Flora Green, Glendale; and a brother, Ed Ingerson, Glendale.

Excavation for Well to Be Finished Soon

Five Cars of Sand and Gravel, One and a Half of Cement and Much Steel Needed in Project.

Excavation for the new clear water well being constructed at the city water plant probably will be completed tomorrow, Mayor W. O. Garrett said this morning.

The first of five carloads of sand and gravel arrived this morning and two more were expected this afternoon. The well also will require one and one-half carloads of cement and 10,600 pounds of reinforcing steel.

Mayor Garrett believes the cost of the well, city constructed, will be well below the engineer's estimates, while the only private bid received was considerably above the engineer's figures.

The basin is being built west of the present buildings.

Aboard President Coolidge's Special Train enroute to Kansas City, Nov. 10.—An eleventh hour change in President Coolidge's program in Kansas City, where he will deliver an address tomorrow dedicating the Liberty memorial to World War veterans was announced today by his secretary, Everett Sanders.

After the President makes his address and attends a luncheon in his honor, he will drive to Kansas City, Kan., Sanders said. As far as those on the presidential train could remember it will be the first time an executive has ever visited Kansas City, Kansas.

Accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, Secretary of War Davis, who is a native of Missouri, Sanders and the usual military and naval aids, the President left the capital at 8 o'clock last night and the presidential train is expected to arrive in Kansas City early tomorrow morning.

Armistice Program Held at High School

Armistice Day, although it does not come until tomorrow, was reverently observed this morning in student assembly at the Maryville High School. The program was in charge of the History Club, Miss Bertha Northcutt directing. Ben Thompson presided at the exercises.

Miss Laura B. Hawkins pledged renewed devotion to the memory of James Edward Gray, former student, who was killed in action in 1918, the only Maryville High School boy called upon to lay down his life.

Edwyna Forsyth pleaded for world peace pointing out its need and declaring that war had proven that problems could "never be finally solved by brute force."

Walter Allen devoted his speech to the memory of the unknown soldiers and described the ceremony given the unknown hero who rests at Arlington National cemetery.

Bonnie Campbell urged a rekindling of the flame of patriotism among the students and pointed out to the student audience that the greatest American privilege was that of going to the poles and voting.

Ora Petty quoted figures on the cost of war and urged Armistice Day as a time to consider the cost of war and the cost of peace.

Musical numbers were given by Orville Bennett, accompanied by Lawrence Wray, Nettie and Nellie Russell, Marian Gann, Winifred Todd and a sextette of girls who sang the French National hymn in French.

The stage in the auditorium was decorated with American flags and ferns.

Senator James A. Reed, chairman of the committee to whom the evidence would have to be submitted, will return from Missouri before Congress reconvenes December 6 and a committee session may be called about that time.

OIL MAGNATE ENTERS PLEA

"NOT GUILTY," SAYS E. L. DOHENY TO FEDERAL CHARGE.

FALL'S PLEA SIMILAR

Defendants In First Criminal Prosecution Arising From Oil Scandal Are Bound Over To Nov. 22.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Albert B. Fall and E. L. Doheny today pleaded not guilty to charges of conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with the Elk Hills Naval Reserve.

They were formally bound over for trial by jury in District of Columbia Supreme Court, starting November 22.

The charge against them was the first of the oil scandal criminal cases to reach the stage of personal appearance in court—for five years after the $100,000 "little black bag" episode on which the charge is based and nearly three years after the incident was exposed by the Walsh Senate oil committee.

The two civil suits by the government to annul the leases on Teapot Dome, obtained by Sinclair's Mammoth Oil Company, and on Elk Hills, obtained by Doheney's Pan-American Petroleum Companies, are still pending in federal courts, a decision being imminent in supreme court on the Elk Hills suit.

A contempt charge against Sinclair for refusing to answer the senate committee's questions also is pending in the District supreme court, and is expected to be tried soon.

Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, special government counsel, are prosecuting both criminal and civil cases.

Wood Makes Himself Economic Dictator

Governor-General of Philippines Issues Proclamation Abolishing Public Utilities Board.

Manila, Nov. 10.—A proclamation, which it is said virtually makes him economic director of the Philippine Islands was issued by Governor Wood today.

The proclamation abolished the public utility board of control and invested the governor general with sole authority over public utility projects and enterprises, in which approximately $100,000,000 has been invested.

The board of control, which was created under acts of the Philippine legislature, was composed of the governor general, the president of the senate and the speaker of the house. It exercised jurisdiction over the Manila railroad, the Manila hotel, coal mines and sugar plantations developments.

In his exclusive order General Wood said that legal opinions forwarded to him through the Bureau of the Insular Affairs from the Judge Advocate General of the Army and the United States Attorney General's department had declared the board of control to be illegal.

QUEEN WON'T BE MUZZLED

TO SAY WHAT SHE PLEASES TO NEWSPAPER MEN.

LAUGHS AT PREMIER

Rumanian Official Who Announced He Would Be Present At All Interviews Is Ignored.

Aboard Queen Marie's Special Train, Denver, Nov. 10.—Queen Marie of Rumania isn't going to be suppressed when she talks to newspaper men, she made it plain today, following an announcement by Professor Petresco, representative of Premier Averesco that her majesty must allow him to be present at all meetings of herself and newspaper correspondents thereafter.

Her majesty laughed at Petresco's pronouncement. She intends to continue her friendly relation with the correspondents aboard the train without the restraining influence of an official chaperon.

Petresco was fearful that her majesty might utter some remark in these meetings with newspaper men that would be injurious to the Averesco regime. He told correspondents last night that "it was the queen's desire that he be present at conferences hereafter." When questioned, he admitted this was prompted by him and later it was learned that the decision was unknown to the queen.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By C. P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer.

Washington — Three Democratic presidential possibilities came out of the recent election in first-class running order.

Governor Al Smith of New York, of course.

Governor Albert C. Richie of Maryland, also, of course, but not quite so much so.

And Senator Jim Reed of Missouri.

One possibility fell by the wayside —Atlee Pomerene of Ohio. He was too thoroughly trounced in his campaign for the Senate to make any showing at the next Democratic national convention.

Another possibility has faded completely into the background—William G. McAdoo of California. William G. was fading anyway. Some spectacular election stunt on his part was required to keep him from disappearing utterly. He didn't perform any. He may be able to hamstring other candidates, but as for his own, he no longer has one.

Smith, Ritchie and Reed! Or maybe Smith, Reed and Ritchie!

This doesn't take dark horses into consideration. It deals only with headliners.

Smith's figure is in the center. Everybody knows why, so why tell it?

Ritchie did, relatively, as well in Maryland as Smith did in New York. Only Maryland isn't on as large a scale as New York. Nationally speaking, the very same thing that's an explosion, coming from New York, is only a pop, coming from Maryland.

All the same, if Smith can't connect, Ritchie's either second or third in line of succession.

But don't forget Reed. Reed cleaned up Missouri as effectively as Smith cleaned up New York or Ritchie Maryland. He himself wasn't a candidate for anything this year but his support was a big factor in electing Harry Hawes to the United States Senate in place of a Republican.

BARBS

Forbidding college students to use automobiles reminds us that words like "verboten" do occasionally bounce back, no matter how hard they have been stepped on.

Retail merchants say men shoppers are better sports than women, according to a magazine article. Probably that's because they're not professionals.

Uncle Who Is in Vaudeville Makes Call on President

Washington, Nov. 10.—Uncle John Wilder likes the White House, where his nephew, Calvin Coolidge, lives, and he doesn't like to be uppity but he doesn't think much of these Washington goings-on of his younger relatives when there's something important to be done in Plymouth, Vt.

"He ought to get back and take charge of his farm," Uncle John complained. He called on the President recently at the White House—but not until he got an invitation.

"I was his uncle before he was President, and I guess I still am," explained Uncle John.

Uncle John is one of the 14 Plymouth citizens,—most of them relatives of the President—who are touring the country in vaudeville as old-time orchestra, playing the dance tunes of a couple of generations ago, more or less. The whole crew went to the White House to play for President and Mrs. Coolidge.

"Cal looks better than he has for several years," Uncle John said. "I hear he works pretty hard and I guess that's why he looks good. Hard work is the best way to keep fit."

Uncle John is 81 but he can still do a day's work on his farm, he hastened to add. There isn't any chamber of commerce in Plymouth but if there was, Uncle John would be in it. Not only does he like Plymouth better than any where else, but, he says, "when Cal was home, my wife says to him, 'Cal, you've been around a good bit; where would you rather live?' Cal thought real hard for a spell and then he says, 'Plymouth.'"

Uncle John said he though the President would be reelected in 1928.

"But still, he oughta be back and run that farm," he added.

Merchants Warned Against Bad Checks

Couple Who "Worked" Chillicothe May Be Coming This Way, Says Telephone Information.

Warning that a pair of bad check "artists" had "worked" Chillicothe and were believed to be making their way toward Maryville was received by telephone today by F. S. King, manager of the Graham store here, from the manager of a Chillicothe store owned by the same company.

The alleged defrauders are a man and a woman, and they have a small child. They left Chillicothe in a Studebaker automobile with a Nebraska license. They had been operating previously in towns east of Chillicothe, and it is believed therefore that they are coming west, probably toward Omaha.

At Chillicothe, the woman cashed checks made out to her by her husband, under the name of Waltz. The woman is described as a blonde, wearing a coat with large fur collar and cuffs.

The warning was spread among local merchants this morning by the Chamber of Commerce.

This and That

Just what relation is the duck story to the fish story?

This seems a pertinent inquiry in view of the accounts given by three local duck hunters of happenings yesterday morning at the lake on the Foster Wallace farm, northeast of Maryville, which has been made into a private shooting preserve.

Martin Lewis, jr., one of the trio, came back to town yesterday morning staggering under the weight of a string of ducks that reached from his shoulders to the ground. Asked about them, he replied that they had been shot by himself, O. K. Bovard, J. C. McDonnell and Mr. Wallace. As nearly as he could remember, he had shot fifteen himself, the legal limit, while Bovard had brought down eleven and McDonnell twelve.

This was all very well, and, considering Mr. Lewis' known marksmanship, was easy enough to believe.

But Mr. McDonnell, consenting to be interviewed, modestly admitted that he had shot more than any of the others, but that seven ducks was his record. A slight discrepancy there.

Then Mr. Bovard explained that he an Lewis had worked together, the latter firing a few shots over the heads of the ducks while they sat on the water, just to frighten them, while Bovard brought them down. As nearly as Mr. Bovard could remember, he shot seven ducks in this manner, while McDonnell and Wallace got five, and Lewis shot off thirty-seven ears of corn in a neighboring cornfield.

For persistent shooting, it appears, Mr. Lewis was awarded the honor of carrying the ducks.

Waiving all minor differences, and accepting Mr. Lewis' figures, there must be something wrong with old-style arithmetic, as it is impossible to doubt the veracity of any of the hunting party.

Let's see: Lewis shot fifteen, Bovard shot eleven, McDonell twelve, and Wallace an undetermined number. Altogether the party got twelve.

Quail Season Opens in Missouri Today

Closed Season in Nodaway County Will Probably Go Into Effect in December.

Today marks the opening of the quail season in Missouri. As Nodaway County recently voted for a closed season on quail for a period of two years, it will not go into effect here until about the first week of December when the county court will publish the result of that election.

Deputy game wardens throughout the state have been instructed to enforce the section of the game laws which specifies the number of quail a hunter can bag in a day. The limit on quail is ten for one day and not to exceed more than fifteen in possession at any time.

The season in the state closes on December 31.

The game laws also specify that a hunter must have a license and it must be in his possession.

WHEAT HERE YIELDS 17 BU.

STATE ACREAGE LOW

Sowing In Missouri Has Declined From 4,565,000 Acres In 1919 To 1,298,000 In 1926.

The latest wheat threshing returns from farmers in Nodaway County to the State-Federal Crop Reporting Service shows an average of 17 bushels per acre this year. The five-year average is 16.6 and for the last ten-year period 16.1 bushels an acre. During the past fifteen years the lowest yield per acre in this county was 13 bushels in 1917 and the highest was 30 in 1913. From the records of condition and yield over a long series of years a full or 100 per cent crop of wheat for Nodaway County should average 20 bushels per acre.

During the past fifteen years the Missouri wheat acreage harvested has ranged from 2,300,000 in 1911 to 4,565,000 in 1919, since which time it dropped for the next four years to around 3,000,000 acres, when a further decline was made for the next two years to 1,600,000 and in 1926 to 1,298,000, the lowest area for a long period. Last August the prospects in Missouri was for a heavy increase over the 1925 wheat seeding, but weather conditions during September and first half of October were unfavorable in most sections of Missouri as well as many other winter wheat states.

The years of heaviest abandonment have been 1912 with 23.2%; 1916 with 20% and 1917 with 22%, while in 1926 only 6% of the fall seeding was lost from winter kill. The five-year average abandonment has been 4%. During the past fifteen years the average loss has been 7% but most recent years have run below that figure. Quite often in years of low yields, quality is inferior while in years of high yields the quality is excellent and weight over 60 pounds.

Greatest handicaps to wheat crops are deficient moisture, excessive rains and winter kill, which have been more harmful than plant diseases or insect pests. The ten-year average yield was 14.1 bushels per acre for the years 1911 to 1920, which includeed the good returns in 1913, 1914 and 1918, while for the ten years, 1916 to 1925, the average was 13 bushels with all these years having low to average yields except 1918. The lowest year of this ten-year period was 1921 at 10.9 bushels while the average wield in 1925 was 15. During the past fifteen years, 1916 with the outstanding year of low yields, while 1914 for most counties was the year of highest yields, although 1913 and 1916 recorded high yields for nearly one-half of the counties. Record low yields were not shown in any county for 1913, 1914, 1918, or 1922, while no county had its highest yield in 1916, 1919, 1921 or 1922.

In Northwest Missouri lowest yields were recorded in 1923 and highest in 1913; North Central counties, lowest in 1924 and highest in 1913; Northeast section, lowest in 1916 and highest in 1914; West counties, lowest in 1916 and highest in 1914; Central Missouri, lowest in 1916 and highest in 1914; East section, lowest in 1916 and highest in 1917; Southwest, lowest in 1916 and highest in 1913; South Central section, lowest in 1916 and highest in 1914; and Southeast counties, lowest in 1912 and highest in 1918.

SENATE OPENS BRIEF SESSION

TAX REDUCTION MORE DEBATED THAN JUDGE ENGLISH.

TO PUT OFF CHARGES

Resignation of Jurist Is Expected to Result in Non-Prosecution—To Adjourn to December 6.

Washington, Nov. 10.—With Capitol corridors buzzing over the new tax reduction proposals, the United States Senate convened at 12:30 p. m. today in what was planned as a perfunctory special session.

Although the meeting was called to delay action in the impeachment case of Federal Judge George W. English, little attention was paid that subject and senators and representatives centered their efforts around the projects submitted by President Coolidge and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon for a cut in the nation's revenue measures.

The Senate session was not expected to require more than a few minutes and adjournment will be taken to December 6, when both houses will reconvene to fight out major problems of legislation.

The session was set by resolution before adjournment last spring and could not be avoided but resignation by Judge English a week ago caused managers of the House to seek delay of the impeachment trial. The House probably will decide when it returns that English's resignation should be accepted as the closing of the case and that no trial should be held. English, judge of the eastern Illinois district, was impeached by the House last session on charges of misusing his office.

Little attention was paid to the session, only about a third of the Senate being present—not even a quorum. But those present were actively engaged in the sideline war stirred up over the President's tax proposals.

Father Leo Keeler in Rome University

Former Maryville Boy Is Made Professor Of Philosophy.—Was Educated At Conception College.

According to the Morning Star, published by the students of Conception College, Father Leo Keeler, son of Mrs. Mary Keeler, of Kansas City, formerly of Maryville, has been given the position of professor of Philosophy at the University of Rome.

The Morning Star says:

Father Keeler had just finished giving a lengthy retreat in Belgium. This university has an enrollment of 1,400 students, including laymen, religious and secular priests. At present Keeler is the only American professor on the staff.

Father Keeler was born in Maryville. The first part of his education was received at Conception College. He finished his studies at Montreal, Canada.

Father Keeler's mother formerly resided in Maryville, but has been making her home in Kansas City for the last few years. She lives at 2513 Linwood Boulevard. Two of Father Keeler's sisters are members of the Sacred Heart Order. The third is Sister Jerome, a member of the Benedictine Sisters, who conduct Mt. St. Ocholastica's College and Academy at Atchison, Kan.

Bird Dogs For Sale Cheap at Bethany

A 2 Year Quail Shooting Ban In Harrison County Forces Prices Down.

Bethany, Mo., Nov. 10.—Quotations on pedigreed bird dogs are due for a heavy slump here today, the last day in which quail can be legally hunted in Harrison County for two years.

Sportsmen are banging for one hunt, the first of the year, before the county papers, issued tomorrow, officially announce the passage of the 2-year closed season bill in the general election. Dogs once valued at from $50 to $400 will be offered for almost any price after the hunt.

Farmers advocated the closed season to allow the quail to become more plentiful. Sportsmen contested the issue bitterly and went to the supreme court records in a futile effort to uncover some measure through which the bill could be declared unconstitutional.

The closed season bill was passed by a vote of 2,216 to 1,268.

Polarine and Performance

The performance of individual cars may vary, but the performance of every car depends, to a large degree, on the same factor—lubrication.

A new car poorly lubricated may give more trouble than an ancient model that is perfectly lubricated. The motor oil affects performance more than age.

Improper lubrication always causes trouble in the engine. Surface grinds against surface using every piece of dirt or grit as a weapon of destruction. A slow steady fight goes on between the parts of the engine until they wear each other out and the car breaks down.

If you want smooth, sustained performance from your car, keep it lubricated with Polarine, the perfect motor oil.

Consult the chart at any Standard Oil Service Station or authorized garage for the grade of Polarine made expressly for your car.

STORY—Wednesday . . . . . ONE JUDITH MARTIN, a young teacher at Pendleton University, is kissed by ERIC WATERS on a bet. She also is sought after by DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor.

MYRA ALDRICH, who lives at Judith's boarding house, is in love with Eric. She learns that Eric has kissed Judith and denounces her in a storm of temper.

Dr. Dorn fails to give Judith the attention she wishes at a faculty tea, and to escape the boredom of the company she runs away from the tea, meets Eric and takes a hike into the country.

They dine at a roadhouse. At table Judith is alarmed at something she sees at the window.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER X.

Eric turned and stared, too. "What's the matter?" he asked casually.

Judith spoke in a frightened whisper. "There was a man's face at that window. I saw it."

"Nonsense, Judith. Nobody but a nosey servant, if any one."

A roll of thunder cut off Judith's answer and she could only follow him into a larger hall where a white-aproned waiter beckoned them toward a door.

Seated at a table in a small room under the stairs, she opened the argument again. "But I know I saw someone," she insisted.

Eric laughed again. "Only the leaves drifting down against the pane. You're weak with hunger, Buttercup, and you're seeing things."

But Judith was not to be turned aside. "I don't like it in here very much," she said, glancing around. "That window over my shoulder makes me nervous."

"Well," said Eric, "you're not very original. Faces at windows have been scaring the heroines of best sellers ever since paper and ink were first invented. I don't think you had that kind of wishy-washy imagination." Another roll of thunder interrupted him.

Judith laughed. "Well, I'm afraid of getting wet before we reach home. That sounds like a real storm. Ugh, this little room is spooky."

"We'll go out into the main dining room if you prefer," said Eric. "But it's disgusting—all rigged up with mail order antiques and festooned with onions and dried apples—in wax. Sham 'atmosphere' for a sham college crowd. And sometimes the crowd gets a little rough later in the evening."

A burst of loud laughter from several people somewhere in the building seemed to confirm this statement. Judith settled back in her chair as the door opened to admit a maid in an apron.

The waiter took Eric's order and left them alone again.

"Don't the waffles haunt you?" asked Judith.

Eric shook his head. "Waffles with Myra are all right. But a planked steak with you—is a planked steak with you. Besides, this isn't the room where Myra and I ate."

"Eric," said Judith, smiling between half-closed eyes—but she got no farther, for a loud banging at an outside door had brought Eric to his feet. "Sit still," he said, "till we know what this mean. I don't like the sound of it."

The waiter appeared in the door, his face rather white. "Don't be afraid, miss—but, sir, there's a raid. We'd heard it was coming. Old Dean Brown's fault, over at the college. He's been ridin' us lately."

Eric was wrapping Judith's cloak around her. "Can you show us a back way out?" he asked the waiter.

The man nodded and led the way. Judith clutched at her heart to ease its pounding. Eric put his arm around her. "You're trembling," he said. "We'll come out of this all right. Haven't you any soul for adventure?"

Judith shook her head dully. They followed the man through several narrow passages until he opened an other door and they stepped unexpectedly on soft loam. "Keep to the right," whispered the waiter, as he closed the door after them.

Voices were shouting in the front of the house and once a man ran in front of them, so close that they felt sure he must have seen them. But he ran on and in the fitful light of a cloud-besieged moon Judith saw the glint of brass buttons on his coat.

The moon receded into inky blackness and they stumbled forward blindly. The quick action brought Judith relief and she stopped trembling.

"They're patroling the Granville road," whispered Eric. "We'll have to strike off across the ravine and try to hit the Earlham highway. Its some little walk." He was speaking very cheerfully. "Never came so near to being jugged in all my checkered career. Wish we could have seen the rest of it. If you had been anybody but you we'd have stayed. They had nothing on us."

"Indeed!" snapped Judith. But the word ended in a little squeal of pain as she caught her foot in a twist of wild grape vine root and her ankle twisted under her.

"Stub you toe?" asked Eric calmly. "Too bad. Here, take my arm. Glad we're out of the danger zone. Gosh! what a night. All tempest and wind and threatenings. If only you'd kept the use of your two feet we could have had a real jaunt over these hills."

Judith sniffed.

"Mm-m," mused Eric, after a few minutes, laborious walking. "This must be rattlesnake Hollow. I hear water down there."

Judith did not venture to speak, for her throat was full.

"Excuse me," said Eric. "I forgot you were hysterical. The snakes have probably gone to bed. Will you have my hankie?"

An inarticulate guttural was all that Judith could manage. Eric said more gently, "Are you badly hurt? Will you let me carry you?"

Judith struggled for her voice. "Of course you can't carry me. And how are we ever going to get out of here? I don't relish hiking across brambles and stones in gray suede shoes and a chiffon afternoon dress."

"But just think," he argued. There's a posse behind us, a mackerel sky overhead, the country to roam over and all the irregular verbs in Latin to talk about, if you like. Yet you're not happy. I'm afraid your soul is not full of poetry."

Judith kindled. "Perhaps my soul would be more full of poetry if my stomach were full of beefsteak. I've had nothing but two dinky pimento sandwiches since breakfast. Why couldn't they have staged the old raid after we had eaten?" She was between tears and laughter.

Eric sobered. "Look here, I have two chocolate bars in my pocket. You can have both of them."

She held out her hand for them but stepped back yelping.

"What's the matter?" asked Eric brusquely.

"My f-feet are wet," she gasped. "I've stepped in a river or something."

Eric was striking a match. A stream of black water glimmered at their feet. "Gad!" he exclaimed. "You almost did at that. Must be the Little Coon at one of its deep, quiet places."

They turned back and walked more slowly till over the broken ground. "We should reach the Earlham pike soon," said Eric.

But even as he spoke they stepped into a clearing and Judith pulled at his sleeve. "Over there, Eric. That's a building. And I think it's the roadhouse we just left."

Eric stared. "You're right," he said. "And I can hear the cops still talking on the road."

A crash of thunder and its accompanying shiver of blue light sent them into the shelter of the wood. Big drops began to come down, spattering like soft-nosed bullets on the dry leaves underfoot, with little hissing noises.

A wind began to sweep through the grove, kicking up swirls of leaves. It seized Judith's coat and flapped it about her knees. She collapsed against Eric's shoulder. "What are we going to do?" she wailed. "I can't walk any farther. And it must be after midnight."

Eric patted her arm. "I don't think it's so late as that. But if I walk to town and bring back a car for you it will be darn late. I don't suppose you want to ask the cops for a lift in their vehicle?"

Judith shook her head.

"Well," said Eric, "there's only one other thing to do, and you may not want to do it. I know of some people who have a cabin near here. They might take you in, if you're not too inquisitive about their business and way of living. Shall we try it? I could tramp to town and come back with the old bus early in the morning, in time for your classes."

"Beggars can't be choosers," she replied. "Let's find your cabin."

It was laborious going through the underbrush, against wind and rain, which had increased in violence so that they could not hear each other's voices. Judith clung to Eric's arm with desperation.

At last they stepped out of the dense thicket and Eric swore softly with relief. "Here's the place, Judith. Can you stand quite still here while I go ahead and make arrangements?" His voice roared in her ear, but the wind stole her answer and she could only nod dumbly.

A black wall loomed a few feet ahead, and she watched Eric stumble across the clearing toward it. At last his figure was lost in its shadow. She heard him knock with a peculiar rhythm on a door, then repeat the call again and again.

A window upstairs flashed into sight as someone lit a lamp within, and Judith could discern movements in the upper room.

At last a door opened downstairs and she could see Eric standing in the light from a lamp held by the person inside. A few moments of discussion in low tones followed, before he came back to her. The door had closed again.

"It's all right, Jude," he said. "I hate to leave you, but we're up against it. These people are O. K. as far as your safety is concerned. But they don't want you poking around in their affairs.

"The woman said she's go on up and get your room ready, and in five minutes you could come right in and go to bed. Take that advice. Lock your door and turn in. Before you know it, it'll be morning, and I'll be tooting my little old horn under your window."

He left her at the door, and she found herself in the entrance way to the roughest of farmhouses. An uncarpeted wooden stair ascended steeply. Two wooden chairs were the only furnishings of the lower hall, which was lighted only by the rays of a lamp perched on the top step. There was nobody in sight.

Judith began the painful ascent of the stairs, dragging the injured foot from step to step.

She picked up the ladder when she reached the top and went through the only door in sight. It opened on a bedroom that was little more than a loft, with sloping roof and one dormered window. The shadows from the lamp clung under the eaves and lighted the rough bed and table starkly.

Judith took a long breath, stepped forward and set the lamp on the table. Then she turned to the door, and was dismayed to find it had no lock.

PRAIRIE VIEW.

Otto Kluth trucked hogs to St. Joseph for Ed Vanpelt, Monday.

The Agriculture class has completed their work about cattle and are studying swine now.

We will not have any school Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, because Miss Brandt is going as a delegate to the teachers meeting at Kansas City.

Methodist Hospital and in all probability, will not be able to get all the important news about town. Hence if the "News Column" from Burlington Junction, seem some what curtailed, you who read them will know the reason.

Quite a number of new crossings are being put in at the street intersections and alleys. The material being used is cement, and Tom West and Al Bartlett are doing the work. This is a very much needed improvement.

The High School of Burlington Junction dismissed school on Tuesday of this week for the balance of the week to give the faculty members an opportunity to attend the State Teachers Convention, now being held in Kansas City, and if perchance get an opportunity to see and hear President Coolidge, who is to be in Kansas City on Thursday of this week for an address.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Webb of St. Joseph came Saturday for a visit of a day with home folks. Mr. Webb is connected with the highway system of the State with headquarters in St. Joseph. He is the son of Samuel Webb of Nodaway Township. They made the trip in Mr. Webb's car.

The Rev. E. P. Taggart, a former pastor of the Christian Church, was in town a few days last week shaking hands with his many friends. While here he visited the assembly at the high school, and gave an address to the student body on the "Moral training and moral courage among the young people of the present day." His home is now in Kansas City.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Wheat broke sharply at the close of the Chicago Board of Trade today, eastern houses selling on orders. Other grains were quiet, fluctuating upward but falling to a steady close in sympathy with wheat.

Wheat closed 1⅛ to 1½ cents lower, evening up operations, sending the prices downward at the close. Cash wheat was slightly lower.

Corn advanced nearly a cent during the session but sold off late in the day, closing unchanged to ⅛ cent up. Spot prices were ⅛ cent higher.

Oats were dull, losing toward the close, closing ⅛ cent lower in all positions, with cash prices steady.

Provisions closed 15 to 20 points lower in sympathy with a lower hog market here.

Chant the Battle Cry---Woe to Warrensburg!

Bearcats In Crucial Test Tomorrow p.m.

College football in Maryville will reach a climax tomorrow when the State Teachers College Bearcats and the Warrensburg Mules meet in a Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association championship game on the College field at 2:30 o'clock This game, to which Bearcats and rooters alike have been pointed for the last few days, will mark the crucial test in the 1926 season. A victory in this game will mean at least a partial claim to the championship for the Bearcats, and there is a possibility that a win would put them into sole claim for the conference title.

This will be the last conference game for the Bearcats, and a victory would give them a percentage of .775 in the M. I. A. A. This victory would also mean that no team in the circuit could finish with a perfect record. Warrensburg wins, it will mean almost clear sailing for the Mules, since their only other remaining game is with Cape Girardeau, tail enders in the M. I. A. A.

A series of vicious practice period has marked the training of the Bearcats for this game. When the announcement came last Friday that Warrensburg had downed the Kirksville team, a new spirit struck the men coached by "Shorty" Lawrence and "Pete" Jones, and all week they have been going after the pigskin with a gusto.

The practice this week has resulted in one near casualty. "Fat" Lewis, gigantic Bearcat tackle, was on the sidelines last night, nursing an injured shoulder, incurred when he scrimmaged against Coach Jones on Monday night. There is a bare possibility that this big 220-pounder will get to play tomorrow, but there is also a great chance that he will not even put on his uniform.

Maryville is hoping for a Bearcat victory tomorrow. Business houses, the College, and the Maryville High School will be closed in the afternoon, and indications are that a record crowd will see the game. Reports from towns outside Maryville say that the surrounding country will be well represented at the game.

The Warrensburg team will arrive in Maryville either tonight or tomorrow morning. It is not known whether they will come on the train or in cars. Coach "Tad" Reid will likely bring a squad of about twenty-five players to Maryville. The Mules will leave late tomorrow or early Friday morning.

Elaborate plans have been made for the game itself. The tilt will start promptly at 2:30 o'clock, and between halves there will be demonstrations by both schools. Both boys' and girls' pep squads at the College have been working for two weeks on "stunts" to be given between halves, and something can be expected of the Warrensburg contingent.

Coach Reid said in a telephone message Monday that some 100 rooters will accompany the team, and a letter to the College student council said that the Warrensburg school will send two pep organizations and either a band or an orchestra.

Special reservations for the Warrensburg rooters have been made in the north bleachers. Additional seats have been placed on the south side of the field, and there is now room for a record crowd. Parking space for a number of extra automobiles has been provided, and an augmented force of gate-keepers and policemen will handle the crowd.

Both coaches are planning on a victory, but both are looking forward to a stiff game. There can be no chance that the Mules will come to Maryville minimizing the Bearcat strength. Coach Reid has indicated that this game will be the hardest on his 1926 schedule.

Following are statements by the coaches:

"Shorty" Lawrence, Bearcat coach:

"The Warrensburg Mules are always to be feared. They will consider tomorrow's game as the big hurdle in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association race for the championship. Should they win this game, sailing would be comparatively easy for them for the remainder of the season, since they are likely to win from Cape Girardeau.

"The Mules will not be overconfident. Their coach will see to that. They will come to Maryville determined to play hard against a team of hard-playing Bearcats. There need be no thought that they will come here looking for a set-up.

"As to the Bearcats, I believe that they are really Bearcats in the truest sense of the word. I believe they will fight to the final whistle. This game means much to us outside of the championship factor, and we are going to fight from starting whistle to final pistol shot.

"I have watched my team closely during the last few days, paying particular attention to their attitude. I can say that I am confident that Maryville fans will not be disappointed in the showing of their team. The men will do their part. I promise you a team of eleven fighting devils."

"Tad" Reid, Warrensburg coach:

"It's going to be a whale of a game. We're coming to Maryville expecting "Shorty" Lawrence and his gang to give us the game of our lives. We're not being fooled by past performances, but know just about what the Maryville strength really is. Therefore the expectation of a hard game.

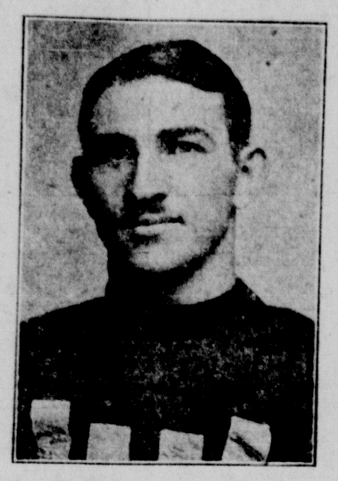
"May the best team win."

The student council has placed orders for emblems for the pep squads. These will replace those now in use. The council has also purchased sweaters for two of the yell leaders. The third yell leader, "Tiny" Wyman, is now waiting for his sweater, which had to be made because the company did not carry sizes large enough to more than half envelop him.

These sweaters are white with a green megaphone on the chest. White letters, S. T. C., are on the megaphone.

A Perfect Trio---Two Aces and A Joker

COACH LAWRENCE



CAPTAIN EADS

COACH JONES

Here they are—the Bearcat leaders. On the shoulders of these three men rests much of the responsibility for the outcome of the Bearcat-Warrensburg game tomorrow afternoon. To Coach Lawrence and Coach Jones has been given the task of moulding a team which will play true Maryville football against this strong Central Missouri aggregation. And the task of leading his team to victory, the task of keeping his mates in a tense, high mental attitude has fallen on Dave Eads by virtue of his captaincy of the Bearcat team. Coach Lawrence and Coach Jones have done much toward making athletic history in Maryville. Their record has been an admirable one—a clean one. They have taught sport and sportsmanship alike, and in the teaching have endeared themselves in the hearts of player and fan alike. And Captain Eads has proved himself a player of strong mettle and a leader of admirable qualities. In Eads, the coaches have their quadruple threat. He can run with the ball, punt it, pass it, and place kick it all over the state. Tomorrow his toe may be called into action at a crucial moment. And coaches and rooters know that "Ikey" Eads will deliver.

OUR COLLEGE

What The Students Out On The Hill Are Doing

Football is the main topic of discussion at the College on the hill this week. Between each class for the last two days there have been vigorous pep meetings, and hog calls and shouts have been heard at almost any time during the day.

There will be a dance at the College tomorrow night. An orchestra composed of Warrensburg students will furnish the music for it. Date hours have been extended for this event, which is sponsored by the pep organizations of the institution.

A movement is under way to establish more literary societies at the College. One society, the Excelsior, which lived at the institution for a number of years, has passed out of existence, its death being a slow one and one caused by strength in the other two organizations, the Eurekans and the Philomatheans.

The student council at the College voted down the application of a body of students to form a debating club, and urged the formation of more literary societies.

A regular manner for students to leave assemblies at the College has been outlined by the student council. All juniors and underclassmen will remain seated until the faculty and seniors have left the auditorium. Then the juniors, sophomores, and freshmen will leave in order named.

The women's physical education department at the College is beginning its regular program of activity for the year. This program includes a half-dozen sports, the first of which is volley ball. A tournament in each sport is held after class teams have been chosen. Following the tournaments, a varsity team is chosen. At the end of the year honors are given to girls with the highest rating, points being given in each sport.

With some thirty College faculty members in Kansas City for the meeting of the Missouri State Teachers Association, many classes at the institution are meeting under peculiar circumstances. Some classes are being taught by students and some are doing research work in the College library.

Dr. Jesse W. Miller, newly elected president of the College board of regents, is a frequent visitor at the institution. Dr. Miller has a son, Harold, who is a member of the Bearcat football team. Another son, Paul, was captain of the Bearcats in 1920.

Wot's The Big Idea? Football---Oh, I See

Oyez, oyez, oyez—here's your chance to ge the unadulterated low-down on the football game tomorrow. Since this football game is a life and death matter to so many persons, it seems only fair that a microscopic survey be made of all its angles, so that there may be no misunderstandings. Just between friends, you understand.

Who's Who comes in handily in this "probe." Page 46, paragraph 12, line 3, shows us that the two contending teams in this melee a la chalk-marked lot are Maryville and Warrensburg. It also shows that the battle will be staged on the Maryville pasture.

The arbitrators, gridistically speaking, are as follows: Butler, Minnesota, referee; Robertson, Emporia, umpire; Utz, Missouri, head linesman.

Past records of these knights of the whistle show that they are past masters at the art of running off a football game. Fairness is their dominating characteristic, and all have a habit of wearing freshly-starched plus fours. So far, so good. Nothing will be lacking from the officiating angle.

After looking up the words "line-up" in the index, we find that the page for this item has been torn out, and the custodian of the book says that the two coaches were the malefactors. They're holding out on us. Neither will give so much as an inkling of who will start the fray. That's football strategy, the critics say. Keep the public guessing is one of the rules for being a good football coach. So we'll have to pass up that item and take for granted that the coaches will start the same combinations which they used in their games last week.

So this brings us to a comparison of the teams. After hastily summoning the aid of the adding machine, the fact is brought out that the edge in weight will go to Maryville, and that this edge will be in the line. Totals on the weight of the two backfields show that 669 pounds of line-plunging force will be exercised by each secondary combination. Warrensburg has one backfield man weighing 174 pounds and the three others tip the scales at 165 pounds each. Maryville has Willoughby, weighing 160 pounds; Eads, 150 pounds; Search, 174 pounds; and Berst, 185 pounds.

The Maryville line will have a surplus of sixty-eight pounds over the Warrensburg forward wall.

But the Mule will turn around and have the edge in height. Five of the Warrensburg men would fail utterly in walking through a 6-foot doorway, and the remainder of the team comes close to "ideal height." After figuring it up, this time using a yardstick, it is shown that the Warrensburg team will average about 2 inches more in height than the Maryville gridders.

So much for Who's Who.

Now, a word about the maniacs. Maniacs are people who have become so wrought up over a certain thing that they act queerly. You've guessed it—we're talking about the rooters. Rooters is a mild name for Maryville College students. They're more excited about this game than they have been excited about anything for a long time. If it were a Billy Sunday meeting tomorrow instead of a football game, some 600 students would wear the sawdust trail out, making of it a concrete boulevard. There will be a monstrous big pep meeting at 7:30 o'clock tonight in front of the courthouse. There will be yells, speeches, yells, songs, and more yells; and then there will be a parade. And the students who sleep tonight will do so from exhaustion, not from a peaceful frame of mind.

School will keep tomorrow morning at the College. That is, the classes will meet. It will likely take a pile driver, however, to ram education into the small place now fully occupied by football. And tomorrow noon school will dismiss.

The Mules will arrive in Maryville ????? That's something else that we'll have to boast ignorance of. And they will leave—well, that depends on who wins the football game.

And there is a divergence of opinion on just how the Mules will leave Maryville. The Bearcats contend that their opponents will leave with long ears hanging down and minus the tail. But the Mules are planning on galloping out of Merry-town over a carpet made of freshly tanned Bearcat hides.

Therefore, it is fair to presume that hoofs and hair will fly tomorrow, and that snarls and braying will be intermingled. The question to be debated will be, resolved that Bearcat claws are sharper than Mule hoofs are hard. Maryville will support the affirmative.

And "Ikey" Eads has a new pair of shoes. They are shoes with hard, blunt toes, built particularly for those who would boot the pigskin between the two-by-fours. And that's what "Ikey" ain't nothin' else but. He tried out his new shoes today and found that the right one was a perfect covering for the toe which holds the doctor of philosophy degree in pigskinism. So "Ikey" is all set for tomorrow. And so are his team-mates. Tonight they will have their final confab before the game. And tomorrow afternoon eleven Bearcats will trot out on the field to meet the Mules.

It would seem that something will be doing on that football field tomorrow afternoon. Maybe it will be worth while seeing. B'lieve we'll "sashay" out. Want to come along?
